Churchill, F.D.R. and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill are believed today to be discussing the stand Great Britain and the United States will take on vital political issues at a forthcoming conference of Anglo-American-Soviet foreign ministers.

Such a three-power conference, first suggested by Churchill, was reliable sources expected to be held in the United States. Churchill arrived at the White House last night for what was described as the concluding phase of talks begun at Quebec. The Quebec conference ended with the discussion of political and post-war problems facing the Anglo-American nations.

AGREEMENT NEEDED
Most observers agreed that solution of virtually all of those problems depend upon Anglo-American-Soviet agreement—not just joint treaties on basic international law issues. They see to possibility of a lasting peace without honest understanding among the powers and elimination of the doubts about each other that in the past have kept them from just action.

The president held official engagements to a minimum today and he and the prime minister planned to spend considerable time in conference. Churchill also scheduled separate appointments with Gen. George C. Marshall, U.S. Chief of Staff.

There are tens of thousands of little children in China who are victims of Japan's war of violent aggression. They are fatherless, motherless, homeless. Food, shelter and education of these innocents is a principal aim of the Chinese War Relief Fund, which is now appealing to the U.S. to a country whose children are mercilessly slain by war's horrors for $100,000.

Madame Chiang Kai-shek's "warphan homes" are doing much to save these unfortunate young lives for humanitarian's sake, and to help educate the Free China youth with intelligent, trained minds.

Madame Chiang Kai-shek herself is an advisory member of a committee in China which supervises the expenditure of the Chinese War Relief Fund. Donations are accepted at any bank or post office.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Eric Scavenius, Danish prime minister who resigned his post when Germany clamped a military dictatorship on Denmark last week-end, has declined an offer by the Nazis to form a new government. Danish refugees said today.

Scavenius, one of the few Danish political leaders to escape arrest following Sunday's bloody revolt, had been asked to head a new cabinet by Gen. Hermann von Hanneken, Nazi military dictator. Other members of the cabinet who resigned in a body with Scavenius, refused even to meet the German dictator.

Hanneken is expected to explore further the possibility of establishing a Danish government. He is reported to be anxious to have the Nazis handle the affairs of the country with the Nazis retaining the power, through martial law, to control saboteurs and suppress dissent.

SEES COMPROMISE
Danish refugees arrive here today, said it was apparent Hanneken is striving to reach a compromise with the Nazis that his efforts so far have been unavailing. They said that for the first time in more than 10 days no German soldiers were seen patrolling Copenhagen streets and that dissenting voices were heard.

Allied headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 2.—British and Canadian Wellington bombers devastated the railway yards at Averara, 10 miles north of Naples, last night with two-ton blockbusters to round out another day of attacks designed to weaken southern Italy for a possible invasion, it was revealed today.

Freight trains torn up and railway installations blasted into ruins by the heavy night assault, the bombers also inflicted an attack by British heavy bombers from the Middle Eastern Command on the Grottole railroad yards guarding the Taranto naval base in southeastern Italy.

Striking far to the west, Warsaw bombed a steel factory at Igolnia in southern Sardinia, scoring five direct hits, and strafed another factory near Genoa.

HIT MILITARY CAMP
Light Allied bombers targeted a military camp and other targets in southern Italy Tuesday night.

The bombs dropped by the Flying Fortresses on Tuesday were revealed to have found their mark, causing no damage to the Italian railway line, but a number of miles from the bombed railroad yards, airfields and aircraft factory.

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
LONDON, Sept. 2.—The Japanese were reported today to have abandoned the large, cigar-shaped island of Santa Isabel in the central Solomons as a result of American outflanking movements which had made their positions there untenable.

Santa Isabel is one of the larger islands of the Solomons group, lying northwest of Guadalcanal and northeast of New Georgia. Allied forces so far have made no attempt to capture Santa Isabel but the Japanese position there has become increasingly difficult since the capture of Vella Lavella to the west and control of New Georgia by American forces.

HINT OF EVACUATION
First indication that Santa Isabel may have been abandoned by the enemy was given by a spokesman at Allied headquarters in Australia today when he announced that American heavy bombers encountered no opposition in bombing Rekata Bay on the island.

The spokesman suggested that the Japanese may have pulled out from this one important seaport base which was their last known position on Santa Isabel.

In previous attacks, there always had been heavy gunfire from the island.

If the enemy has left Santa Isabel, Kolombangara island, just north-west of New Georgia, would be the only Japanese stronghold left in the central Solomons.

Santa Isabel is about 50 miles from Guadalcanal and 67 miles from New Georgia.

It may be that it previously had blasted other Japanese-held bases and that other enemy strongholds are due for a passing before the task force returns home. Copenhagen and its harbor... scene of resistance

King Christian X and Gen. Hermann von Hanneken combined to give Hitler an excellent counter-attack headline while report of the Danes seems a signal for increased resistance all over Europe. At Copenhagen there were clashes between Danes and Nazis, and part of the Danish fleet was scuttled in the harbor. The Germans interned King Christian X, whose 73rd birthday next month may give Danes added incentive for resistance. Nazi Gen. Hermann von Hanneken, commander of occupation forces, proclaimed military law throughout the country.

To Fight Raid

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 2.—(AP)—German military experts claimed a big air victory over British bombers in Tuesday night's raid against Berlin by their own aircraft. It was apparent to them that the R.A.F. was R.C.A.F. succeeded in dropping a huge load of bombs on the Reich's capital.

Neutral Swedish correspondents reported that German fighters nearly 1,400 night fighters in their effort to beat off the bombers, which the paper said dumped 1,500 tons of bombs on the city.

Nazi experts told the Swedish press that the Germans sent up 1,600 fighters Tuesday night in an attempt to beat off the bombers, which the paper said dumped 1,500 tons of bombs on the city.

1,500 TONS OF BOMBS
The London Times Express reported that the Germans sent up 1,600 fighters Tuesday night in an attempt to beat off the bombers, which the paper said dumped 1,500 tons of bombs on the city.

The Express called the raid "the greatest air battle of the war." If the Express London figure is correct the Tuesday raid was lighter by 200 tons than the attack on Aug. 23.

When the bombers returned to Berlin Tuesday night Nazi commentators acknowledged to foreign correspondents that about 300 planes had been shot down.

The Red Army advance below Bryansk netted more than 130 towns and villages and drove the last of the German invaders from the Kursk region, the communique which followed Stalin's order announced.

Drive on Smolensk Develops Rapidly

The drive against Smolensk continued to develop rapidly, the Russians reported. More than 100 towns and villages were occupied during the day in advances of three to six miles.

The Nazis were undertaking feeble counter-measures west and southwest of Kharkov, the Moscow communique said, but Soviet forces battered them down and forced ahead to take several communique.

Among the towns captured in the upper sector of the blating front was Kirovets, 25 miles north of Kromy on the railway to Bryansk. Thus the Russians cut that trunk line vital to the supply of the German front.

GAIN OF 78 MILES
Kirovets is 28 miles west of Glukhov, and its occupation reportedly meant a Soviet gain of 28 miles in two days.

But it was in the Donets basin that the article asserted now that when Germany is transferring all her army divisions, her final defeat could be accelerated if Turkey would abandon her neutrality and throw in her lot with the Allies.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—Russian troops in a general advance on the 700-mile front have broken the backbone of German resistance in the Donets basin, capturing Litchansk and Voroshilovsk, and by the seizure of Sumy have completed the liberation of the Kursk region, Moscow announced tonight.

Surgung westward in every key sector from Smolensk to the Sea of Azov, the Red army occupied hundreds of towns and villages and pushed the hard pressed German defenders back toward the Dnieper River, it was revealed in a Soviet communique and an order of the day by Premier Marshal Josef Stalin.

Among the major Nazi defence bastions toppled by the Soviet onslaught were Sumy, middle anchor of the 250-mile line between Bryansk and Poltava, Litchansk, 122 miles south-east of Kharkov, Voroshilovsk, east of Litchansk; Chiatkovo, 40 miles east of Stalino; and Budenkovka, on the Sea of Azov only 25 miles east of Mariupol.

Nazis Seek To Evade Encirclement
The landslide of Soviet victories in the heart of the rich industrial Donets basin made it evident that the Germans were yielding actively in a pull-back to evade the threat of envelopment by the Russian forces far beyond them to the northwest.

The day's honor of an order of the day by Stalin went to Gen. Nikolai F. Vatutin's Army which captured Sumy, 85 miles northwest of Kharkov, laying open the way to Kromy and the Ukrainian capital of Kiev beyond.

2 Alberta Men Among Airmen Mannheim Raid

LONDON, Sept. 2.—A Halifax bomber piloted by five-year-old Sergeant Bruce Harrison, of Jasper, never reached the target when it set out to help Canada's bomber group "prang" Mannheim, but its experiences were shaky and two crew members now are in hospital suffering from "flea" wounds.

The four-motored aircraft flying with a squadron led by Wing Commander Don Smith of Preston, Ont., was caught in two bursts of "flea" fire, as it crossed the French coast. In the first blast, the engineer (an Englishman) suffered a severe neck wound and in the second, the wireless operator (a Scotsman) was struck in the left thigh.

"We were just crossing the French coast at about 14,000 feet when searchlight beams lit us up without any warning," said Harrison. "We went into evasive action, but they threw up loads of 'flea' and the kite went into a dive for about 300 feet out of control."

CONTINUED TO WEAVE

"After leveling out we continued to weave but a second burst exploded underneath us, one chunk of 'flea' came through the side of the kite to nick the left wing. Things were looking pretty lousy so we decided to jettison our load and set a course for home."

In the "prang," the hydraulics were shot away and it was necessary to lower the bomb doors by emergency methods. Once down, the doors remained there and the speed of the bomber was considerably reduced.

"I was worried the port wheel fell down."

"At the same time they were cracking at us from the ground we saw three FW 190s, but luckily none of them hit us," said Harrison. "Anyway we didn't see any 'flea'."

The plane took height again on the return journey and circled its home airbase at 100 feet. Harrison said that the port gear had been punctured; the engine and two big holes in the port radiator.

Sergeant Hank Danck, 261 Notre Dame avenue, St. Lambert, Que., was midshipman commander of the bomber group. He was shot in the leg and Sergeant Ken Green of Grimshaw, Alta., was the bomb aimer.

army chief of staff, and various members of British military staff and chiefs of missions, stationed here.

After a small dinner last night, Roosevelt and Churchill talked together in the president's study until about 1 a.m. They were again together shortly after both arose.

The meeting of Foreign Ministers—British, Foreign Minister Anthony Eden, U.S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Soviet Commissar for Foreign Affairs Vyacheslav Molotov—would be of a preliminary nature. They would set a basis for a meeting at which the three would discuss the main problems.

Roosevelt and Stalin could then set their problems together, and the three would then discuss the main problems.

There is little question about the importance of political problems involving the Soviet Union, and the need for a three-power conference for getting at the roots of them. Some of those problems are overshadowed by the military nature—second front, Russia.

The Soviet Union recently renewed its demands for an Anglo-American offensive on the European mainland to remove pressure on the Red Army. But there is no doubt from Russia that the free press complaint has more noise than substance—that the Russians require an appreciable Allied presence even if it does not immediately produce a diversionary front.

MacDonald Says: Holding Parley in Quebec Shows Confidence of Allies In Present War Situation

TORONTO, Sept. 2.—(CP)—MacDonald, United Kingdom high commissioner, said in a speech prepared for delivery here today that the confidence of Allied leaders in war operations was shown by the fact that plans for the Quebec conference were launched as the initial attacks on Sicily were made.

250,000 Flee Berlin After Tuesday Raid

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 2.—A Berné dispatch to the newspaper Nya Dagbladet said that about 250,000 persons had fled Berlin after the R.A.F.'s R.C.A.F. raid Tuesday night.

The exodus packed the roads radiating from the German capital as well as its railway stations, the Berné said. Petre were said to have been completely blocked the entrances to the stations, causing scores of deaths.

Indicating that fires still were raging in the city, it said that authorities were blaming blows of bombs in the raid and resulting fire of flames, and communications were disrupted completely.

Fire brigades were summoned from Dresden, Leipzig and Frankfurt, the Berné said.

Among the districts reported badly damaged was the Alexanderplatz district, the Berné said.

Board Warns Dominion's Grain Stocks Not Too Great for Needs

OTTAWA, Sept. 2.—(CP)—The Agricultural Supplies Board, in a statement issued today, warned that Canada's immense grain stocks "probably will be none too great for safety in view of the anticipated need for animal and poultry feeds on this continent."

In a detailed survey of the feed situation, the board said it is vitally important that eastern Canadian farmers who expect to need grain for feeding purposes should not only be prepared to accept whatever kind of grain they can get—but when they can get it.

The statement reviewed transportation problems and the demand for feed-grain stocks. It warned that protein feed ingredients are in short supply.

Canadian feeders, while having the bulk of flour mill by-products reserved for their own use, are getting all the millfeed they want.

Protein feeds are in short supply in their livestock rations when wheat millfeed are not available in the quantities the board said.

FAVORABLE FACTOR

One favorable factor in the feed situation was the abundance of supply of grain in eastern Canada, since a good grazing fall is expected.

An immense demand for Canadian food products both at home and abroad, the board said, had brought agriculture into the forefront of the nation's life.

"Basic to the production of these needed supplies of animal and poultry feeds is the whole problem of adequate supplies of feed," said the board.

Death of Boris Was Great Blow To Nazi Plans

MONTREAL, Sept. 2.—A British official, following the death of King Boris fails to materialize, only two solutions remain to Germany if the wishes of the king are to be carried out.

According to a full Axis partner, according to King Boris, leader of the Bulgarian peasant party, now living in this city.

One-time revolutionary, author, cartoonist, statesman and diplomat, Boris, in an interview with the British United Press, said the two solutions were a military invasion of the country by the Germans.

STRONG MAN

But even in his limited choice, he declared, lies in the fact that King Boris was the strong man of Bulgaria. "Any kind of removal of the King-Boris would not be complete," he said.

Although he was certainly not beloved by his people, he was a "babe" in the hands of the Germans. "They were determined to remove him," he said.

There is no one to take his place. The prime minister, in a position of authority and no political.

Canada Must Develop Trade States Itsley

By MYER NEGRU
 QUEBEC, Sept. 2.—(CP)—Finance Minister Itsley in a speech here yesterday said that Canada must be prepared after victory to do its share in developing trade between countries, "possibly even including other countries develop themselves to the point where they can trade effectively with us and with others."

In an address delivered at the 50th annual convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, he said "we are pushing ahead now in Ottawa with efforts to prepare ourselves for such international action."

BETTER HOUSING

After the war, we must put better housing with the same effort and effectiveness that we are devoting now to price control, he said. "We must conserve and carry out social insurance with the same boldness and thoroughness with which we have raised the income tax for war purposes. We must have the same courage and faith in financing useful peacetime development as we have had in applying in financing the war."

"If we have sought to control increases in prices and wages, it is not because we want to deprive farmers and workers of any benefit which at first glance would seem to result therefrom," he continued.

It was rather "because we believe that such increases, here, there and ultimately everywhere, will in the end, under war conditions, bring untold grief to agriculture and the working class."

Price control will not work if costs of production keep rising, he said.

DANGEROUS RISE

"They have risen already to a dangerous extent since we established the price ceiling on wheat and upward push on that ceiling has been near the breaking point in many places and at many times," he said.

Of the great upward pressures threatening the price ceiling today, he said, the most serious is the immediate future, the minister said, is the pressure of rising wages.

"I realize that it is not possible to say some of you, perhaps many of you, will disagree with me. But I have tried to think straight and I believe you want me to talk straight on this point."

Of labor costs, he said, substantially, prices will have to go up too. There must be limits on cost increases can be absorbed by increasing of profits or within increased output and productivity results. But these are narrow limits and I believe it to be nothing more or less than the sober truth that if labor costs go up substantially and widely, we cannot hope to hold the price ceiling."

Canuck Fliers Win Acclaim in Sicily
 (Delayed)—(CP)—Four Canadian members of an R.A.F. fighter-bomber squadron distinguished themselves during the last days of the Sicilian campaign.

Two large ferryboats loaded with evacuating troops and supplies were sunk, marshalling yards in the town of Italy were bombed from low level, and coastal shipping and convoys were strafed by the squadron of which these Canadians are members.

Active in these operations were P. Frank Regan, a Canadian Warrent Officer, Donald Nicholson, Winnipeg, P. G. Harold Hudson, McMillan, Ont., and P. G. Larry Ford of Kingston, Ont.

Two ferryboats were sunk, another was trying to sink another across the straits of Messina when the Kittyhawk attacked and sank the ship in a few minutes.

"I was coming up like a rat upside down," said Hudson. "But we all came through safely."

The same four Canadians took part in a successful attack on railway marshalling yards in the town of Italy, starting three large fires and shattering lines and rolling stock.

Regan, who four months ago in the desert shot down a German aircraft, said: "Our biggest thrill was being assigned to give air support to the Canadian troops in Sicily."

Air Transport Plan Submitted To British Govt.

By FOSTER BARCLAY

LONDON, Sept. 2.—(CP)—Foreign outlook. Conservative members of parliament, carrying their agreed view on civil aviation outside the house of commons, have submitted to the government an air transport policy.

The parliamentarians proposed formation of an Empire air board for development of Empire air transport without infringing the domestic liberty of the dominions.

The pamphlet, signed by Ronald Tree, W. R. D. Perkins, J. A. Wright and Alfred Reid, was distributed among members of the house of commons and lobby correspondents.

CONCERNING WITH APPEAL
 Publication of the document came with an appeal to the government by the joint committee of the association of British chambers of commerce, the Federation of British industries and the London chamber of commerce, for immediate action to frame a unified commonwealth air transport policy.

The conservative parliamentarians extended the following recommendations:

Formation of an air registration board for the United Kingdom to plan air routes and hear applications from would-be airline operators.

Formation of a European air board for the control of trunk routes throughout the continent and a European air transport company in which each nation would be interested on an equal basis to operate European routes.

The transfer of government control of civil air transport from the ministry to a civil transport board.

The conservatives said they believed that a world air transport system internationally owned and operated would not be acceptable to the United States or Russia and would be a disaster to the British in the British house of commons.

SERVICE MAIN GOAL
 Instead, they advocated an international convention embodying the principle that the fundamental aim of air transportation is to render genuine public service.

Gallant U. S. Soldier Wins Highest Award

By HAROLD V. BOYLE

A U.S. EVACUATION HOSPITAL IN SICILY, Aug. 30.—(Delayed)—(AP)—The room was full of wounded soldiers and they all lay facing an open door—waiting.

In one bed Sgt. Martin Moritz was propped up. There was a fresh white bandage on the side of his head which was all that was left of the right arm he used to do the chores on the family farm, back in Benton, Ill.

The crowd echoed the lead of the first man through the door was the colored man of the hospital. He was followed by Sgt. Moritz, head of the United States 7th Army, the crowd walked up to the bed where Moritz lay.

That brings us to departure day, Aug. 19 in the morning. He boarded a troop transport and with no end of mingling on his part and no less on the part of the crowd, he was escorted to Sgt. Moritz. We saw a loaded transport.

HIGHEST HONOR
 He was waiting for them to give the other man the highest honor of the American army to bestow, the Distinguished Service Cross.

The citation told how Moritz, after his arm was shattered by an enemy bullet, tried to amputate the arm himself so he could continue treating the other men.

It told how, when litter-bearers came to save him, he insisted that the other man be picked up first. It told how he suffered an abdominal wound eight hours later when the Germans shelled the aid station in which he was lying.

The general held the medal briefly in his hand.

"Soldier," he said, "I have pinned medals on none more worthy than this."

Oddities From Sicilian Front

By HAROLD V. BOYLE
 PALERMO, Sicily, Aug. 27.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Leaves from a war reporter's notebook.

Most noticeable to the men who have the job of putting Sicily's paratroopers back on their feet is the way Fascism has robbed the Sicilians of all initiative.

Whole towns have been found starving with ample food stores nearby—merely because the military distribution system broke down after Fascist officials fled.

"On one occasion we found 6,000 people who had been without bread for nine days because no one had given them authority to get wheat, although it was readily obtainable less than 50 miles away."

Said Luigi George Marinkov, young former police officer of St. Paul, Minn.

"They had lived on hairnets until we came in. Within 12 hours we had food in the city and had arranged for shipment of a continuous supply of food."

Marinkov said the lives of the people had been so ordered by the complicated government system of Fascism that they were afraid to make a decision of any kind themselves.

The people of one small Sicilian town didn't want their houses turned into a battlefield. They shared them with German soldiers who were on the way to the German soldiers, all that was left of the German army.

The Heines set up a machine gun near the square, planning to ambush the Americans. Then the Sicilians began to come up one after another with cups and bottles of wine.

The Jerries couldn't withstand either the wine or the hospitality and began to leave. They were racing drunk to the local bottle where the Americans found them a little later, still snoring peacefully.

Major Epic Flops Hollywood-Minded Major "Sad Pigeon" at Kiska As Nippos Up and Go

"This is the best article yet written on the Kiska occupation, even if it is a personal letter. There is no objection to your printing much parts of it as you desire." The "Sad Pigeon" said a personal memorandum attached to the following report from Captain Macdonald, Associated Press photographer, to his bureau chief, Frank G. Corrie, Seattle.—EDITOR.

BACK IN ADAR.—(AP)—Dear Boss: Well, the battle of Kiska is over. It was a clambake, but good. If there had been a major battle, it would have been the most photographed one in history.

There is an outfit from the army, under a Major S (spelling doubtful) who had a complete Hollywood camera outfit with him, including sound and action of "Roll 'em!" "Out!" "Cries!" etc., and all this made me very homesick.

But not nearly as sick as Major S, who shot thousands of feet of film on the preparations for the great battle, expecting to shoot the final super-stuff on Kiska, as heroic American doughboys dashed ashore into the devastating machine gun and mortar fire and the Japanese shelling glared at them.

Less Kiyomo cameras manned by others of our intrepid cameramen. Major SAD PIGEON.

All this failed to materialize, and Major S is a very sad pigeon. His dreams of Alaskan glory were shattered by those nasty Nippos who took him on the chin, leaving him world and a deserted Kiska to the now-glumly-sighing crews of Major S and his happy bunnies.

I am not at all upset over the great machine gun and mortar fire. Tension grew to fever-pitch as the zero-hour neared.

At the last battle conference of the generals, admirals, etc., with the press corps, I was sitting on Admiral Kinkaid's right, and he said to me, "When suddenly it dawned on me that we were to take off on this day, Friday, Aug. 13."

That brings us to departure day, Aug. 19 in the morning. He boarded a troop transport and with no end of mingling on his part and no less on the part of the crowd, he was escorted to Sgt. Moritz. We saw a loaded transport.

World Security Said Vital for Canada's Future

By J. J. SANDERSON
 WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—(CP)—More than any other country, Canada is dependent for future greatness and prosperity on a world system of collective security. Brooke Claxton, parliamentary assistant to Prime Minister Mackenzie King, told newspapermen here yesterday.

On his way back to Ottawa from a speaking engagement in the mid-western United States, Claxton met a group of Canadian and American newspapermen in St. Louis.

He laid down a five-point program as his vision of Canada's foreign policy:

- 1.—The promotion of co-operation between Britain and the United States.
- 2.—Co-operation with the United States in the protection of the North American continent and of Britain which, in this day of rapid transport, should be regarded as an outpost and bastion of this continent.
- 3.—The formation of some permanent organization of the United Nations as soon as possible.
- 4.—Representation of the individual United Nations on wartime boards and committees on a functional basis.
- 5.—The promotion of free trade in the post-war world and the free interchange of goods.

He was questioned by American newspapermen as to Canada's willingness to abandon the restrictive trade agreements which she has entered into since the 1930's.

Claxton said that the Canadian people would be willing to abandon these agreements if it meant a wider scope of trade.

In any event, the Ottawa agreements have been modified by war conditions to such an extent they are practically in a state of suspended animation today, he said.

Looking for a Dog-Out

Count Ciano it appears has "escaped" from Italy, with his family and a pocketful of cashable foreign securities. Since Berlin puts it in that way, the implication is that Badoglio had the Count in custody, whether because he stole the securities or for political reasons.

As Berlin also says the renegade has taken refuge in Germany, it may be inferred that he is following in the footsteps of his missing father-in-law, and that somewhere in the Reich there has been or is to be a general reunion of the Mussolini family.

Where Benito and Ciano and the rest of the Fascist headmen are or may go is not a matter of great importance so long as their whereabouts are known. The Allies have a score to settle with them, and there is no place in the world where they would be or are likely to be allowed sanctuary when the time for settlement arrives. Next to Hitler, Ciano ranks the most-wanted of the lot, Haile Selassie of Abyssinia having special claims to demand his appearance at the bar.

Whatever may be the ultimate purpose in the mind of Badoglio, and whatever his reasons for placing Ciano in custody, the fact that he did this is to his credit. Always remembering how Ciano was a man who had connived at the scoundrel's "escape".

Saving Children

The provincial committee which is investigating child welfare conditions in Alberta centres received this week a lengthy list of recommendations from a sub-committee of the Edmonton Council of Social Agencies, and proposals also from G. B. Henwood, chairman of the Regional War Labor Board, Magistrate Miller, and on behalf of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The interest thus shown in child welfare is in the highest degree commendable, those making these proposals, for this is one of the assuring factors as to the future of the city and the province. The greatest asset of a community is its youth, and its greatest potential asset the children who will be the grown-ups a decade or so hence.

No effort at conservation is so important in itself or to the future as that which aims to conserve the spiritual, moral and economic values of children who because of parental neglect or delinquency are liable to go wrong.

Those who as private citizens or public officials are concerned themselves in this work are doing the right thing, and deserve praise, and that which will help through all the days to come to make and keep the standards of personal conduct and citizenship high.

The public in general may not be familiar with the details of child welfare effort, for modern life leaves the average man and woman little time to devote to social or other activities outside the home and the daily routine. But what is certain is that the neglected or delinquent child has the deep capacity of becoming a well-mannered person, and that those who are engaged in the fine task of saving these unfortunate from lives of lawlessness, crime and crime have the approval and good wishes of all who take time to think about the issues which are at stake.

Denmark Rebels

Herr Hitler's "model protectorate" of Denmark is trying to throw off its overlordship. The rebels are not only rising only, without relation to national policy. The Danish minister rejected an eight-point demand for closer cooperation with the Nazi officials, thus giving to the revolt the sanction and leadership of the national authority. Denmark is now for the first time in its history, although formally, in a state of war against Germany.

The country, with a population of only 4,600,000, was occupied by the Nazis three years ago although it was bloodied and with no attempt at resistance. The Fuehrer has had an opportunity to apply his supposedly benevolent policies under the most favorable conditions. In recent weeks there were few reports that he was having trouble at that quarter; indicating that Nazi methods there were less tyrannical than elsewhere.

Denmark, it is evident, was the subject state in which slavery was given its least irksome aspect. Since Hitlerism in its mildest mood has driven the country into rebellion, even the Fuehrer can hardly defend himself into thinking that the more brutally treated peoples in other subject states could ever be so well adjusted to his domination. If he ever tried anywhere to win the favor of an outraged nation it is in Denmark. The outcome of the war will show the workability of his scheme to link a dozen nations together in a Berlin-biased empire.

The Danes cannot fight Germany, for they are numerically inferior and isolated from any help who would gladly help them. But there is no longer any doubt about their will to do so, nor about the course they will take when they are so provoked. It comes possible. If he is capable of thinking objectively Hitler must see in the revolt of the Danes proof that his grand scheme to build an empire on the old Roman pattern could never gain the consent of the people upon whom he planned to impose his over-riding authority.

The Swedish fleet turned out and escorted a Swedish ship to the Baltic. The warship which had escaped into Swedish waters. Though they could have done so, Nazi submarines did not attack the convoy, as they would certainly have done a year ago. It seems to have dawned on Admiral Donetz that he has enemies enough within the limits of the Swedish fleet into the hostile line-up.

The first was that the measure was exceedingly bad in principle and details. The second was that he did not understand the discussion which its importance demanded. The third was that the bill would result in the most-wanted of the lot, Haile Selassie of Abyssinia having special claims to demand his appearance at the bar.

Today's Sport Parade

By Jack Cuddy

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Amid the electrifying incidents and the heroic performances that have stood out like sharply-etched mountain peaks, the Louis-Galento fight to me was the most prominent of all.

That's why I told the bright young girl reporting for her high school paper that the Louis-Galento fight provided my greatest thrill in sports.

The dark-haired youngster with the big nose-book regarded surprise. She undoubtedly expected a different reply—an answer in which the playing of "My Old Kentucky Home" would be mixed up with an upset victory in the Derby.

"VIOLATED IMAGINATION!" she appeared to exclaim. "Little Lady, sports is the greatest tension of all for writers. You can appreciate that now because of the tongue-inches, attitude of some writers and fans toward the many mismatches that result from lack of talent. But before Pearl Harbor things were different. And it was only at heavyweight title fights that I saw veteran sports writers make a suffer their attacks—such was the tension."

My frail, feminine interviewee, who apparently had read of Sgt. Joe Louis' tour of the army camps and fat Tony Galento's tour of the lesser cities, fighting wrestlers and such, remarked suspiciously: "But why picked out the Louis-Galento fight? Why not Dempsey and Firpo? Why not Louis and Schmeling?"

I replied frankly: "I didn't see the Dempsey-Firpo fight, and neither the first nor the second. Louis-Schmeling blows violated my imagination. But the Louis-Galento brawl did."

I gave her a word picture of the Louis-Galento fight—the fight. Fat Tony—a short-armed, In Major Leagues

Paul Waner Becomes Sixth To Make Over 3,100 Hits

By HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—No one paid the slightest attention when an old boken named Waner stepped up to the plate as a pinch-hitter for the Dodgers the other afternoon and rapped a sharp single past Louverly, the Cubs' shortstop.

After all, they've been seeing Paul Waner do that for 18 years. There were seasons with the Pirates that every time you looked up you saw a Waner rounding first base. Lloyd Waner was little less annoying to pitchers than his brother.

The folk who overlooked at Ebbets Field the other afternoon was the fact that it was his Paul Waner's 3100th hit in the National League.

To grasp the significance of this you must realize that only five players in major league history have made more hits. They are: names to conjure with—Cobb, Speaker, Honus Wagner, Eddie Collins and Elyase.

WAS GREAT WITH SEALS
Waner easily might have finished next to the immortal Ty Cobb's amazing 4100 but he came up three years sooner. The little man from Oklahoma was as formidable a hitter as he ever was when he broke in with the San Francisco club in 1925.

The Seals keeping him on the coast while he hit 300, 350 and 400 gives you a rough idea of how much potential he has. Waner was a pitcher in the early days of his career.

Knocking off more than 300 hits a campaign was nothing for Waner while he was in Pittsburgh. As Algonz are Paul will be fortunate to pass Napoleon Lajoie's 3242, the total to which he is nearest.

The youth movement in Brooklyn has him on the bench and old baseball age has caught up with him at 40. He put on cheaters in New York.

HAD KEEN SIGHT
As keen a pair of eyes as ever looked a pitcher in the field or a batted ball in the air.

Light, swing and coordination made Waner a fine golfer and a fine player.

GIRLS
The youth movement in Brooklyn has him on the bench and old baseball age has caught up with him at 40. He put on cheaters in New York.

Deciding Game Kingsway Tonight
Moose and Centrals meet tonight in the deciding game of their best of three Senior Men's Football league semi-finals at Kingsway Park, starting at 7 o'clock.

Friday, Harvard-Cornell and Air Force-Bombardiers play the final game in their two of three semi-finals. Both have won one game.

84 Shut Outs So Far

American Circuit Hurlers Are Having Great Season

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Facts and figures compiled in the American League office show that the pitchers are having a mighty fine year this season. The boys have thrown shut-outs no less than 84 times up to the present three-day layoff, as against a season's total of 90 last year and 67 up to the same point in the 1942 race.

That 30 of a year ago was regarded as a symbol of mighty fine pitching, a sort of modern milestone although it didn't stick up too well after the record 145 shut-outs of 1935.

There have been five one-hit games thrown this year—three of them against New York Yankees. ## Yield Generally Heavy; Require Warm Weather To Obtain Best Results

Warm weather is required in the Edmonton district to properly ripen farm crops, Hon. D. B. MacMillan, minister of agriculture, stated Thursday in issuing his ninth crop report of the current season. "Moisture and crop conditions in the area are very good," the minister stated. "Crops are generally heavy, and garden produce stands at 110 per cent of the 1942 production."

I Saw Today

Battle conditions in this district are generally, and by the week-end, cutting of wheat and oats will be well under way. Many points near Edmonton have reported slight hail damage, while the Leduc district reports hail damage as "severe." Lodging has done considerable damage to crops in the area.

Agricultural conditions for the province are generally satisfactory, with the exception of the south-east portion where crops are light. In general, however, conditions have been "quite favorable" for harvest.

In southern Alberta, cutting is well advanced, and many fields have been combined and threshed. In western sections, however, crops are still green, and will be cut very late.

More Effective Action Against Juveniles Urged

Some juvenile delinquents commit offences so frequently and of such a serious nature that more effective measures than are being taken at present, the Rev. Fr. C. J. Ryan, juvenile court judge here, said at the Wednesday afternoon meeting of the child welfare investigation committee.

"In our enthusiasm for the rehabilitation of the delinquent, we must not forget we also have a duty to society as a whole," Fr. Ryan declared. He also said, "over and above efforts being put forth to reform the delinquent, we have the need of a corrective institution where the more incorrigible could be detained."

While incorrigible juvenile delinquents are not common in Alberta, Fr. Ryan said, "they are and should not be confined to a common jail."

SPECIAL INSTITUTION

"To my mind, the ideal solution would be an institution along Borstal lines, where boys and young men from 16 to 20 might be given a new start, on parole," he declared. "It would be a corrective institution where the more incorrigible could be detained."

While incorrigible juvenile delinquents are not common in Alberta, Fr. Ryan said, "they are and should not be confined to a common jail."

To Winnie—With Love

In case you had any doubts of the regard Britain's plain folk have for their fighting Prime Minister, the photograph above should dispel them. Winston Churchill was merely calling at London's National Liberal Club to see the unveiling of his portrait when he was engulfed in this spontaneous demonstration of affection and loyalty. With faces alight, cheering, shouting "It's Winnie!" men and women struggled to get near enough to touch him. Some succeeded. The girl in the light suit at his left has him by the shoulder, while the man behind her stretches his arm to cup "Mr. England" on the back. Mrs. Churchill is there, too, but all you can see of her is her broad-brimmed black hat, indicated by arrow.

Unlocking Adventure

By CHARLES COURTNEY

On the bottom the light reflected from the sand made a cheerful twilight in which we could walk around without lights. The long hull stretched farther than I could see without twisting my head, and the wreckage was slippery. My job was to tend the lines for Hank, who was working with an ax, and Tom who was using a saw, and a couple of others who were pulling and shifting the lumber. Another diver stood with a submarine light close to his face. They all looked like fantastic sea monsters in their bloated rubber suits.

After an hour we were pulled up gradually and put into the decompression chamber. In this sealed room, filled with air at the pressure which we had met under water, we tried stories until we had gradually expelled the nitrogen from our tissues.

Hank was our authority. An old-timer of at least 35, he had been at the business so long that he had worked under every imaginable condition. He had deserted an American freighter in Havana to join a small, ill-organized shabby financed treasure hunt for one of the 80 Spanish galleons that carried $80,000,000 in doubloons to the bottom of Matanzas Bay.

Hank's filthy, flabby, little bald head was the first thing I saw when the crew searched it, clambered over the decks half buried in coral, their supplies and water began to run low, weevils were in the meal, and the rats were so bold that a man had to sleep in his bunk to keep them from taking a nip at his toes. When the divers finally worked into what had been the strong room, they found it had been turned into a mass of loose planks. Someone had been there before them, for there was nothing left, nothing but a BOOM!

"You flinched!"

Answer: Chicle is solidified sap of the Central American sapodilla tree.

Left except a few green eels caught under overlapping boards. Hank was always lecturing us on keeping fit. There were too many examples around us of the damage that the sea could inflict on divers. Old Man Aarons, the watchman on the dock, wasn't really old, he turned 60, but he had been twisted with rheumatism and deaf since he was 25.

Others became blind or tubercular. If we got tangled in bubbles in our hearts, it was all over in a few minutes; if we got them in our brain or spinal cord, we were seized by the diver's palsies.

Pressure was our great enemy. If our air line fouls and that wall of air collapses which keeps the pressure inside our suits greater than the water pressure, it doesn't take many minutes for the sea to crush us to jelly.

Currents are another hazard. One day I had been down my allotted crawling around on my hands and knees and hanging my shoulders over piles of lumber, trying to use the current.

When the signal came that I was being down long enough I started up the shot line. A few feet from the bottom, a current grabbed me with such force that it dragged me 50 or 80 feet south of the mother ship. Getting my back to the pull, I held onto the shot rope, but the current yanked me with such violence that I lost my grip. There I was, hanging at an angle of about 20 degrees and every second being pushed farther and farther away.

In another second I would be dragged out to sea and no one would ever know what had become of me.

Pulling frantically at the life line, I signalled to be drawn up. Slowly I began to rise through the clutching water that tried to drag me back. About 50 feet higher there was suddenly no current at all. As if I had been released by a giant spring, I swung in the other direction, then back and forth like a human pendulum until the momentum wore out.

When I reached the deck, Bob, who was tending the life line, had eyes as big as saucers.

"You sure did give me a fright, Charles," he told me when I came out of the iron cylinder. "Your bubbles were streaking back and forth as if you were caught in a shuttle. I thought you had gone crazy, I surely did."

But toward the end of the season I was getting tired. Ten days was good money when you got it, but in foul weather, when the current was running so strong that we could even crawl around the bottom, the company would not send us down.

As autumn came, work was not only less steady but more uncomfortable. Sometimes we had to wear four suits of wooden underwear, four pairs of bamboo socks and felt boots under our lead-soled leather shoes. Often, before we had been down an hour, our fingers got too numb to work and our air lines became frosted.

It seemed foolish to be engaged in work at which, even under the best conditions, you spent 90 per cent of your working time resting. Then, too, if you got in four months' work in a year, you were lucky. Hank and I figured that in this climate we averaged about 15 days a year, 12 days a month, substituting all those days when the salvage ship must look for the divers' mistakes, a year 12 days a month, and we could not go down because of fog, tide, winds, and excessive currents.

However, this diving game was fast a piece for me. I had saved money, but not enough yet to start in my own leak business. I thought it was time to look for steadier work to make my capital grow faster.

McCoy Health Service

At the present time, we realize that if treatment is started in time, most heart troubles can be partially cured and many of them completely overcome.

Regardless of the particular form of heart disorder, I advise the use of the facing treatment at the beginning of any regimen designed to help the heart. During the fast the heart has less work to do, thanks to the fact that the heart rate usually becomes slower. When the patient is on a fast, the heart is relieved of a great deal of extra work and as a result, the patient with heart trouble frequently notices an improvement in the heart action when the fast is used.

The fast is beneficial also, because it helps to reduce any gas pressure against the heart and because it helps to bring about the elimination of much toxic material from the body. As these wastes are thrown out, the patient loses that feeling of weakness and gains in strength.

The diet following the fast must be carefully chosen and the patient is to use three small meals a day, while all gas forming foods must be avoided. The patient with any form of gas disorder should avoid onions, garlic, cooked cabbage, dried beans, etc. The patient is to take one warm sponge bath each day, although very hot tub baths or cold baths are better omitted. Plenty of sound, restful sleep is also capable of doing much good when the patient has any heart symptoms, and spinal treatment which tends to soothe and relax the nervous system at the same time that they stimulate the circulation of the blood are of value.

An important part of the treatment is careful exercise. In fact, I consider carefully regulated exercise of the greatest importance in treating many forms of heart derangements. The heart is a muscle and gains in strength and tone just like any other muscle with use. With continued rest, the heart becomes flabby and soft and the patient grows weaker instead of better. As the very acute forms of heart trouble, it may be advisable to stay in bed, but in other forms, the patient will improve more rapidly if he is taught what exercises to use and how to do them. The most important point is to start all exercises and walking very slowly and to gradually increase the effort made, resting when the heart becomes rapid.

I was very pleased to read an article dealing with the value and benefits of exercise in overcoming heart defects in young men, which recently appeared in a national magazine. This described a system of strengthening the heart used at the University of Pennsylvania with these young men who have been found to have a heart affection. As a result of this scientific system of exercise, the heart symptoms are cured and the young fellow who has inherited college believing that his heart will keep him crippled finds that he can return to good condition.

This splendid work was started as a result of the findings of a famous heart specialist of Austria, Dr. Wenckebach, who said: "If properly applied, a graduated system of physical training will positively cure the heart affections that physical exertion is supposed to cause."

It is a hopeful sign of the times that educational instructors are discovering that proper exercise will not only cure heart trouble in young people but will also build up endurance and robust health.

Readers interested in receiving further information on heart trouble are invited to send for the special articles on the subject. Just address your request to McCoy Health Service in care of this newspaper, enclosing a large, self-addressed envelope and ten cents in stamps.

All questions regarding heart and diet will be answered. Large, stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 100 words. Address: McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 111 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Cal.

Jams and jellies made their appearance on the shelves of most of Edmonton's retail stores Thursday as rationing on these foodstuffs went into effect. Many stores, however, were without these eagerly-sought commodities.

It was announced by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board that merchants who were sold out of jams and jellies and other articles coming under the "D" ration coupon plan will have until Sept. 30 to replenish their stock without surrendering coupons.

Those who have jams and jellies in stock may sell to their customers, but must take the necessary coupons called for by the purchase. This order by the board clears up a situation that has given considerable anxiety to retailers.

Already fairly large stocks of jams and syrups are appearing in some of the retail stores in Edmonton. There are several varieties of jams in four pound tins and storekeepers do not expect there will be a great demand for these immediately because eight coupons are required to buy a four pound tin of jam.

Unless there are eight members in a family consumers will have to wait till other coupons become valid before they can purchase these.

One coupon is required to purchase six fluid ounces of jam. A container which will hold 6 fluid ounces of water, when filled with jam will weigh eight ounces, as jam is of a greater density, therefore one coupon will purchase one half pound of jam, two coupons one pound.

Canadian Wrens Arrive Overseas

OTTAWA, Sept. 2.—(CP)—Arrival overseas of the first Canadian Wrens was announced yesterday by naval service headquarters. Twelve ratings and two officers were in the party which has just landed in Britain for duties with the overseas Royal Canadian Navy establishment.

These first members of the Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service to be selected for overseas duties included pay writers, typists, stenographers and clerks. They will take over jobs at London headquarters which have been handled by British Wrens until now.

"Originally, no hope of overseas service was held out to Wren recruits, but Canadian girls are serving with the main group in Washington."

New Sabotage In Copenhagen

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 2 — The newspaper Aftonbladet said today that new disturbances and sabotage have broken out in Copenhagen and elsewhere in Denmark, but reliable sources reported that German military authorities have stifled resistance through the ruthless use of arms.

A large Danish factory was blown up yesterday, 1,000 persons were killed or wounded in Copen-agen and 450 were slain in Svendborg. Aftonbladet said. However, most observers believed the casualty figures, if true, covered the entire period from the time martial law was proclaimed last week-end.

Meat, bread and fuel are scarce in Denmark as a result of German requisitions and transportation restrictions, the newspaper added.

Airman Who Rode On Tail of Plane Reported Missing

Officer Derek M. Sharp, the flying Yorkshireman who rode the tail of a training plane to earth after being unseated in midair over Alabama, is missing in action. Sharp was training at Tuscaloosa, Ala., with a group of R.A.F. cadets in January, 1942, when a training plane in which he was riding with an instructor hit bumpy air and tossed Sharp out of the cockpit. He landed astraddle the tail, held on tightly and gave the instructor the thumbs up salute as he rode to safety.
